UPDATED 1:20 PM EDT -- Details of U.S. - Russia Bilateral Talks "Will not be released" -- US Gives its "Read-Out"

HAL TURNER | WORLD | MARCH 25, 2025 | HITS: 2759

Details of talks between the U.S. and Russia about the war in Ukraine will not be released, Kremlin spokesperson Dmitry Peskov said Tuesday.

The two nations met in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia Monday, and a joint statement was expected to be released at 4 a.m. EDT Tuesday but never materialized.

Peskov explained "the content of these talks will not be made public for sure. This is something that should not be expected," and that "reports made [by the delegations] to their capitals are being analyzed, and only later it will be possible to speak of any understanding."

"There is understanding that contacts will continue, but there are no specifics yet," Peskov said. "It will be agreed upon.

Russian negotiator Grigory Karasin also spoke with TASS Tuesday, and expressed that the meetings held Monday "was an intense dialogue, not easy, but very useful for us and the Americans."

President Volodymyr Zelensky posted to social media Monday the "U.S. team" spoke with atives of Russia. After that, another meeting took place between the Ukrainian and American teams. I'm expecting a new report soon."

UPDATE 1:20 PM EDT --

The United States has given a generalized "read-out" of the talks with Russia:

> In line with presidential-level discussions between President Donald J. Trump and President Vladimir Putin, the United States facilitated bilateral technical-level talks with the Russian delegation March 23-25 in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. Following those discussions:
> - The United States and Russia have agreed to ensure safe navigation, eliminate the use of force, and prevent the use of commercial vessels for military purposes in the Black Sea.

- The United States will help restore Russia's access to the world market for agricultural and fertilizer exports, lower maritime insurance costs, and enhance access to ports and payment systems for such transactions.
- The United States and Russia agreed to develop measures for implementing President Trump's and President Putin's agreement to ban strikes against energy facilities of Russia and Ukraine.
- The United States and Russia welcome the good offices of third countries with a view toward supporting the implementation of the energy and maritime agreements.
- The United States and Russia will continue working toward achieving a durable and lasting peace.
